The format for AAI Workshops – Online and In-person

Wednesday session ONLINE:

This session will be held using the Zoom online platform. Please refer to the section “The Workshop Online Platform and a guide to connecting online” within the Workshop Materials document also provided as part of the material downloads.

The Saturday Workshop IN-PERSON:

On Saturday you will have assigned rooms according to your Group Colour.

Within the Timetable below you will find a table that allocates a GROUP and ADVOCATE NUMBER for each advocate participating.

Group Performance Sessions and Technique Sessions have been scheduled through the day. In the Group Sessions, you will break into smaller groups to individually present your allocated advocacy tasks before a Judge/Trainer in the same manner that you would present in court.

You will find your allocated advocacy tasks (see notes below on preparation) set out within each session of the timetable.

Once you have finished each performance you will be given a review by the AAI Trainer. This review is designed to be positive, not critical. You will be given advice on ways that your individual performance can be improved using various advocacy skills, including an explanation and demonstration of the particular skills relevant to your performance.

The Workshop Case Study

We acknowledge that for some of you, the case study we will use may not be of the type you generally deal with. We use this case study deliberately as we believe it to be very good for the teaching of advocacy, demonstrating skills that can be applied in any jurisdiction. You may also find that you have been allocated a Prosecution (or Defence) task when your daily role is for the Defence (or Prosecution). The advocacy skills you will learn will be of universal application – the same skills apply regardless of the type of case, the jurisdiction you appear in or the side you appear on. This has been proven over three decades of advocacy instruction by the AAI.

Preparation before the Workshop

This is a performance-based workshop and advance preparation is essential.

You are required to prepare your set tasks between now and the commencement of the workshop. Please allow yourself time to prepare properly – it is anticipated that you should allocate 6 hours + for this preparation.

Please don't get bogged down in your preparation with any legal technicalities within the case study.

Don't research or bring statutes or precedents. Do not be distracted with the law or with jurisdictional procedure. Evidence is restricted to only that contained within the case study so you do not need to look outside the immediate information provided or prepare any further documentation.

An AAI trainer will act as your witness for each task. However, knowing the details of each witness statement will greatly assist you in gaining the most benefit from this skills training.

Task performance format on Saturday

The tasks set within Sessions 2 and 5 on Saturday require you to first perform a 2 minute portion of the Closing Address you will perform later in Session 6. This portion will incorporate the point or points on which you intend to cross examine the witness.

Please prepare as if you were to present the whole of the task, even though you will see in the timetable that a time limit of 5-7 minutes has been set for each task performance. The time allocation means you may not be able to present all of the task and you are not expected to be able to finish your performance. Do not rush and try and fit it all into the allocated time. Your review will be on that part of the task you present, not the parts you may not have reached.

The Advocacy Tasks

If you are not totally familiar with the requirements of any particular advocacy task, you may find it helpful to refer to the "Specific Advocacy Tasks" summary in the Workshop Materials document also provided. Also, you are encouraged to use the AAI Advocacy Manual, included with the material downloads, in your preparation and for future reference. You do not need to print or bring the Manual to the workshop. (Please Note: the AAI Advocacy Manual pdf file is no-print, no-copy, as it is AAI Copyright restricted. A hard copy of the manual can be purchased through the AAI.)

The Workshop Online Platform and a guide to connecting online

There are multiple ways to join a Zoom meeting. You can join a meeting through an email link, through a link in a Word or pdf document, from a web browser, or from the Zoom desktop and mobile application.

1. How to join a meeting on the Zoom desktop or mobile app.

If you are not already a Zoom user and wish to download the free Zoom program beforehand, visit www.zoom.us. You do not have to be a registered member of Zoom to use this platform.

1. Open the Zoom desktop app.
2. Join a meeting using one of these methods:
 - If you want to join a meeting without signing in, click Join a Meeting.
 - If you want to join a meeting by signing in first:
 1. Sign in to the desktop app.
 2. Click the Home tab.
 3. Click Join .
 4. Enter the meeting ID provided by AAI and your display name.
 - Change your name if you don't want your default name to appear.
 - If you're not signed in, enter a display name.
3. Select if you would like to connect audio and/or video.
4. Click Join.

2. Join a meeting from a browser and launch the Zoom app.

1. Open your web browser.
2. Go to join.zoom.us.
3. Enter the Meeting ID provided by the AAI.
4. Click Join.
 - If this is your first time joining from Google Chrome, you will be asked to open the Zoom desktop app to join the meeting.
 - (Optional) Select the Always open these types of links in the associated app check box to skip this step in the future.
 - In the pop-up window, click Open Zoom Meetings (PC) or Open zoom.us (Mac).

3. How to join a meeting without a Zoom account, downloading or opening the Zoom app.

Join a meeting from a web browser without downloading any plugins or software.

1. Locate the meeting invite link provided by AAI.
2. Click 'join link' to join the meeting.

On your web browser, a pop-up window will prompt you to open or download the application.
3. In the pop-up window, click Cancel.
4. At the bottom of the page, click 'join from your browser'

You will be directed to a new page.

5. Click Allow to allow Zoom permission for your microphone and camera.
6. Sign in with your name to join the meeting.
7. (Optional) Select the Remember my name for future meetings check box.
8. Click Join.

Test your technology

Test your technology and layout ahead of time (viewing, speaking and hearing). You can also join a test meeting to familiarise yourself with using Zoom

To help participants check their technology is working correctly, the workshop will open 30 minutes before the start-time. This will ensure everything runs smoothly during the workshop. You will be in the in the general session room until the workshop starts at the scheduled time.

If you lose connection during the session

An AAI Coordinator will be monitoring the workshop constantly. If for any reason you drop-out of the workshop, re-join with the original meeting ID and password and the AAI Coordinator will readmit you to the session.

If you do not get a response, please text to 0418 473 303.

A short guide to online etiquette

- To avoid any issues with latency such as screen freezing and poor audio quality, ensure your device has a suitable internet connection.
- This cannot be overstated – remember, you cannot advocate if you cannot be heard or seen.
- Be mindful that sensitive microphones will pick up sounds of keyboard tapping, paper shuffling, sneezing and coughing.
- Mute the microphone when not speaking to avoid distracting other participants.
- Reduce environmental (background) noises – close windows and doors and mute your phone.
- For best results, consider investing in a headset with a microphone instead of the inbuilt microphone and speakers in your device (this will help reduce background noise and unnecessary feedback).
- It is not necessary to shout; however, speaking softly and mumbling should also be avoided – speak in your normal voice.
- DO NOT TALK OVER OR INTERRUPT WHEN ANOTHER PARTICIPANT IS SPEAKING. Instead, use the “raise your hand” feature when you want to speak. This will avoid participants speaking over one another and the need to repeat questions.
- Position your camera so it sits at eye level and in a way that feels natural and allows you to look directly at the camera when speaking.
- If you are using a laptop, simply place a couple of books underneath so it is raised to eye level ... your presence and eye-contact will be improved enormously.
- Adjust the lighting - close your blinds to reduce glare and doors to reduce noise.
- Ensure you have a clean, neutral background – consider applying one of the offered virtual backgrounds.

SUMMARIES OF ADVOCACY FUNDAMENTALS

The following are summaries only. For an in-depth analysis of the skills involved in each, please refer to the AAI publication “The AAI Advocacy Manual”.

The following material has been designed primarily to assist those who regularly practice in Australian courts or tribunals. The basic principles apply to any advocate who appears on behalf of a client before a decision maker, be they an Assessor, Magistrate, Judge or Jury.

Good advocacy, in any jurisdiction, is a skill that can be learnt, and these principles are as relevant to solicitor advocates as they are to counsel in the highest courts.

The Australian Advocacy Institute's materials and workshops are designed to enable advocates to achieve a basic level of competence and to develop their skills in the pursuit of professional excellence.

Competent advocacy consists of a number of developed skills and techniques.

Underlying these skills and techniques are three fundamentals:

- | | |
|--|--------|
| 1. The approach to preparation. | Page 5 |
| 2. The approach to the trial process. | Page 6 |
| 3. The ability to communicate effectively. | Page 6 |

The specific skills that the advocate performs in court: Page 7

1. Opening.
2. Examination in Chief.
3. Cross Examination.
4. Re-Examination.
5. Argument.

Preparation

Preparation is in 3 parts ...

1. Knowledge of

- all factual materials (on both sides) in detail
- current relevant law
- relevant evidence law and procedure.

2. Analysis of

- the factual material (on both sides);
- the legal result to be achieved.

To develop a consistent Case Theory which is:

- the central construct, “A theory from various conceptual elements” (Oxford);
- the central pathway through the facts and law leading to the desired result.

and is

- realistic and credible;
- consistent with as much evidence as possible.

Case Theory for the prosecution/plaintiff is:

- a positive factual construct;
- supporting the factual and legal basis for the case;
- anticipating the defence case.

Case Theory for the Defence is:

- a Rival Alternative Theory (RAT)
- rational and credible
- sufficiently undermining of the opposing theory.

3. Performance preparation

Knowledge and Analysis (above) – tell us what to do.

Preparation for performance – tells us how to do it.

It involves:

- organizing all materials
- structuring all tasks
- preparing summaries of submissions
- preparing speaking notes
- preparing to perform each task.

Approach to the Trial Process

A trial is not an inquiry or an investigation. It is a purposive exercise by each side to achieve its desired result, based on its case theory.

In performance preparation of each task:

- The final address (Argument) must be prepared first based on the case theory and the arguments to support it;
- Evidence in chief must be prepared next because it is usually the foundation for the Case Theory;
- Cross examination is prepared next to discredit, accredit or emphasise;
- Re-examination is next to the extent to which it is possible to anticipate cross examination;
- The opening is prepared last when all above steps have been prepared and the course of the trial is set.

Communication as an essential part of persuasion

This involves building a relationship with the decision maker by:

1. Involving the decision maker
2. Speaking with apparent conviction and commitment
3. Using a conversational style
4. Using simple, expressive language – avoiding jargon and legalese
5. Speaking in an audible, varied voice
6. Keeping a slow/punctuated pace
7. Maintaining good eye contact
8. Minimizing or avoiding the use of notes,
9. Using appropriate body language
10. Avoiding distracting mannerisms and verbal habits
11. Applying the principle of Primacy
12. Being tactful and empathetic with witnesses and the decision maker.

SUMMARIES OF SPECIFIC ADVOCACY TASKS

The following are summaries only. For an in-depth analysis of the skills involved in each task, please refer to the AAI publication “The AAI Advocacy Manual”.

Opening

An Opening is:

1. a short outline of the case
2. told as a simple persuasive story
3. in narrative not argumentative form
4. painting pictures of places, people and events
5. well structured
6. not over detailed
7. presented with the use of visual aids
8. related to the charges.

A Defence Opening should:

1. identify the issues
2. outline the Defence story in relation to the contested issues
3. be in narrative not argumentative form
4. be positive, not defensive
5. avoid repetition of the prosecution/plaintiff story.

Examination in Chief and Re-Examination

Examination in Chief:

1. develops in detail of the story as opened
2. is organized and structured
3. sets the scenes before the action
4. is controlled by the advocate
5. is told by the witness in answer to non-leading questions on contested issues
6. establishes facts not conclusions
7. is assisted by visual aids (and tendering exhibits)
8. involves the tribunal
9. with expert witnesses - qualifies the witness and leads the opinion.

Re-Examination is:

1. limited to that which arises in cross examination
2. elicited by non-leading questions
3. used sparingly and only when necessary.

Cross Examination

Cross Examination is:

1. a foundation for the final argument
2. organised, structured and controlled by the advocate
3. designed to discredit or accredit the evidence and/or the witness
4. consistent with the case theory
5. conducted by a series of leading propositions
6. not argumentative
7. conducted without repetition of evidence in chief
8. organised with appropriate ‘gate closing’
9. not unnecessarily aggressive or confrontational
10. compliant with Irving Younger’s “10 Commandments of Cross Examination”
11. compliant with the rule in Browne v Dunn.

Argument

Argument is:

1. logical, credible, empathetic (Aristotle)
2. a series of structured arguments
3. presented as a series of conclusions supported by facts or inferences
4. designed to persuade the tribunal
5. directed towards the desired result
6. consistent with the case theory
7. consistent with the onus of proof
8. balanced – deals with weaknesses
9. presented in a conversational style
10. prepared to be ready with answers to anticipated questions from the tribunal
11. as appellate argument – is based on the grounds of appeal and in compliance with appellate principles.

GENERAL DO'S AND DON'TS IN ADVOCACY

Hints for advocates to avoid giving the impression that they have learned advocacy from North American TV shows rather than from the Australian Advocacy Institute ...

DO NOT ...

- Greet the judge, opposing counsel or witness;
- Call the opposing counsel “counsellor”;
- Approach the bench or the witness box without permission;
- Move from behind the bar table during the hearing without leave;
- Leave the bar table unattended while the judge is in court;
- Address adult witnesses by their first name;
- Stand when the opponent is objecting or arguing;
- Stay seated when addressed by the judge.

ADVOCACY AND THE AUSTRALIAN ADVOCACY INSTITUTE

THE CRUCIAL ROLE OF THE ADVOCATE

In the adversary system, the parties are responsible for the conduct of the litigation, subject to the court's procedural rules and case management.

The independent judge or jury has no investigative role and no position on the merits of the case until the evidence and submissions are presented by the parties.

The court's role is to decide the case on what it finds to be the facts established by the evidence and the legal consequences which flow from such facts. Ultimately, after evaluating the evidence and argument, the court makes its decision by asking the question, whether or not the party making the allegation or claim has proved their case to the required standard.

The system depends on each party presenting its best case on the understanding that "truth is best discovered by powerful statements on both sides of the question".

The advocates' role is crucial because they decide how to conduct their case, what evidence to present and what arguments to put. Their role is not to judge but to present and argue consistently with their clients' instructions, their ethical obligations and in their clients' best interests.

In the adversary system, where in contested cases there are often different versions of events, each side contends for its version of the true facts upon which the decision should be based.

The advocates' responsibility is to deal with the facts and submissions skillfully and ethically to persuade the court to accept the version of events and legal consequences which best suit their clients' cases.

ADVOCACY TRAINING

For centuries there was a wide-spread belief that advocacy could not be taught. Lawyers who wanted to practice as advocates relied on observation, trial and error, and experience to learn their art. All this was often done at the expense of the client and without any defined standards or assessment of even minimal competence in advocacy.

This was not a professional approach. Advocacy is a specialised activity for lawyers which requires developed disciplines and skills. A competent advocate must be more than someone performing "to the best of their skill and ability". A minimum standard of competence should be required.

The Australian Advocacy Institute (AAI) was established by the Law Council of Australia in 1991 in response to the ever-growing demand by the Australian legal profession for advocacy training. The AAI is now an independent, not-for-profit body that conducts Advocacy Training Workshops across Australia and in the UK, The Hague, Hong Kong, Singapore and Malaysia.

The AAI teaching method is based on the combination of concepts and practical skills. Its application is comparable to 'coaching' rather than lecturing and is the accepted teaching method worldwide.

AAI TEACHING PHILOSOPHY

The aims of the Institute are to:

- improve the standards of advocacy skills
- provide a forum in which ideas and experience in advocacy training can be shared and developed
- design and develop methods and materials for training lawyers in advocacy.

The AAI teaching philosophy is based on the following principles:

1. Competent advocacy is essential to serve the best interests of clients, the interests of the community, and the interest of justice.
2. Advocacy is characterised as the art of persuasion. All advocates must have the basic understanding of good advocacy and the ability to perform the essential advocacy skills.
3. The practice must be in accordance with professional ethics and etiquette.
4. Advocacy consists of identifiable disciplines, skills and techniques which can be taught, learned and developed.
5. Effective court room communication skills are essential to advocacy.
6. Advocacy skills are best taught and learned by the workshop method of instruction, demonstration, performance and review.
8. The focus of teaching is on methods of preparation, analysis and performance, enabling advocates to develop individual style and approach, free of fundamental error. The aim is to help pupils to improve, rather than find faults in their performance.
9. The disciplines, skills and techniques taught are generic and cross jurisdictional.
10. Experience alone does not ensure competence. The AAI approach to preparation, analysis and performance helps advocates to learn from their experience and develop their skills.
11. The emphasis in teaching is on:
 - complete familiarity with factual and legal materials
 - a method of analysis of those materials to produce a consistent case theory
 - a method of preparation for the performance of specific advocacy tasks
 - development of skills in:
 - i. legal argument
 - ii. opening and closing addresses
 - iii. evidence in chief and re-examination
 - iv. cross-examination
 - v. written advocacy
 - vi. communication skills.
12. The instructors are experienced and competent advocates, trained in the skills method of teaching by the AAI in accordance with its philosophy.
13. The AAI is committed to the pursuit of excellence in advocacy by:
 - encouraging advocates at all levels to continue learning and developing their skills
 - equipping advocates to analyse their work and critically assess their performance
 - identifying and training members of the profession as potential trainers.

EDUCATION, TRAINING AND RESEARCH BY THE AAI

The work of the Institute includes:

- Researching and developing advocacy techniques and advocacy training methods.
- Developing workshop materials.
- Providing general advocacy skills workshops open to all lawyers who have a right of audience in courts and tribunals.
- Designing and conducting in-house workshops for law firms and institutions such as Offices of the Director of Public Prosecutions, Government Solicitor and Legal Aid Services.
- Conducting advanced and specialised workshops in appellate advocacy, expert evidence, advanced cross-examination techniques, questioning of vulnerable witnesses and jury advocacy.
- Providing teacher training workshops for Australian, English, Scottish, Hong Kong, Singaporean and South African advocacy teachers according to the AAI method.
- Collaboration and instruction in advocacy training with the English Inns of Court College of Advocacy (ICCA), the Scottish Bar, the Singapore Bar, the Oxford Institute, and the Hong Kong, Malaysian and South African professions.
- Structuring and providing workshops in conjunction with Monash, Melbourne and Bond Universities, ANU, The College of Law, University of Hong Kong and the Leo Cussen Institute.
- Training of war crimes prosecutors in The Hague and Tanzania.
- Supporting undergraduate and post graduate courses at universities.
- Supporting and teaching at the bar readers courses in Australia.
- Presenting seminars and demonstration sessions at national and international conferences.
- Conducting international conferences on advocacy and advocacy training.

The AAI's work would not be possible but for the contributions of the AAI board members and trainers whose ideas and teaching have enabled the philosophy of the Institute and the teaching of advocacy to develop.
